WATCHDOG HOLMAN

Sees No Reason Why Congress Shouldn't Adjourn

By the Fifteenth of June Anyhow.

THE FICKLE PUBLIC.

People Always Clamors for Congress to Hurry.

WASHINGTON, May 11 .- [Special.] -"I really see no reason why we should not adjourn by June 15," said Judge Helman in the course of a long conversation on his legislative experience. "The work of the house is well ferward, and you must have noticed that dilatory tactics have almost entirely ceased, and with every day's work the rate of doing the work increases. As to the senate, I consider the trouble practically over. The Democrats are united and have a working majority, and as soon as that far is made plain the Republicans will not delay action merely for the sake of delay. In fact, it will not do. The peo ple are getting very impatient and are tak-ing unusual notice of every act that looks like delay."

Judge Holman's Views.

"But is it not true that there is always a great popular clamor about this time of year for congress to hurry up, and is not, the president usually most unpopular at about this time in his administration?"

"Oh, yes; that is the common experience, though there are really unusual and very urgent reasons for the impatience of the people just now. Of all the presidents in my time Mr. Lincoln was the most unpopular in the early part of his administration, although General Grant had two bad spells, as we say in Indiana. There was something very curious about that. He suffered the usual storm of criticism while the offices were being given out, then got over it, was re-elected and reached his worst stage of unpopularity in his sec-

"At what time in Lincoln's administration do you think he was most unpopu-

"About the time Secretary Cameron went out of the cabinet all the evils seemed to come at once-unsuccessful war, heavy taxation, disappointed office seekers and blundering all around. There was a time, it seemed to me, when the war Democrats were the only unwavering supporters Mr. Lincoln had. A great deal of that was due to Secretary Chase, whom we re-garded as the brainy man of the cabinet, and who was a real and practical civil service reformer. He maintained that under the peculiar circumstances every loyal and efficient Democrat in office should be retained. You can imagine what a storm that raised at a time when the present civil service system was scarcely thought of and a new party had just come in, with thousands of men hungry for the spoils. Many things occurred which have never got into history, and one little episode in Secretary Cameron's career is worth relating even now. He appointed a newspaper man as a sort of general agent at New York and intrusted him with, if I remember rightly, about $280,000. The man was honest enough, I suppose, but had no business ability, made all sorts of queer and useless purchases, mixed up the government money with his own and drew on it at random for the expenses of his paper. The natural result was a considerable loss to the government at a time when we needed every dollar.

An Interesting Episode.

"Well, there was a committee appointed by the house, consisting of Mr. Dawes, Mr. Washburn, Mr. Cox, myself and some others, and we reported a strong resolution condemning the secretary. When Mr. Cameron entered the senate, he made it the business of his life to get that resolu tion expunged, and he had what might be called his regular agent in a member of the house. Year after year that member worked at it till there were, I believe, but three or four of us left who had anything to do with it, and we finally consented to the expunging resolution. The old man came in from the senate and shook hands with several whom he had not spoken to for years, and when he came to Mr. Cox and me he broke down and cried-I will not say cried like a child, but the tears flowed freely. He was very much affected, and, as I said in advocating the expunging resolution, I think his action had been merely a mistake caused by the general hurly burly of the times. After Mr. Cameron left the cabinet Mr. Lincoln began to gain, slowly at first and afterward more rapidly, until he became the idol of the people. How far public opinion will react in the case of Mr. Cleveland it is of course impossible to say, but it is certain that a sident is at his worst in the second year of his administration, and the chances are always 16 to 1 that the party in power will lose heavily at the middle term elec-To this general loss must this year be added the losses caused by the hard times, and so, as I have been urging for some time, it is highly important for us to get away from here early, and I am now satisfied we shall do so."

"An Ill Wind," Etc. Coxey has done one good thing for Washington anyhow, though he did not intend it. When he pitched his camp in south Washington, many of the elite rode down to take a look at it and came back holding their noses. It is joeularly asserted that some of the Indies on their return had their carriages sprinkled with cologne and their clothing disinfected. The general exclamation was, "Great beavens, do human beings actually live in that neighborhood all summer?" And when it was answered that they did there was a loud cry for improved sewerage and a general cleaning up. When Coxey's men had got about half the garbage removed from the lot and the rest well stirred up, there came an average rain, and after it the sun came out as hot as on an ordinary June day in the latitude of New York Several men swore they could smell the camp from the south windows of the capitol, and one of the colored citizens of the vicinity gave this emphatic testimony: "W'en de wedder does dat erway down roun hyar, dey ain' no libbin fit fo' man er beeses. De sun jess cook up all de dirt an crupshun, an no man er oman nudder ain' nebber sperunced whut er bad smell is till dey smells roun 'bout hyar in sech time like dat. Dese hyar white fellers is goin ter have wun mon-strous hard time ob hit w'en de sun shine agin, an yer better mock whut I tells

Of course the health officials had to move pretty lively, and all kinds of organizations here began to send warnings to their fellows elsewhere to stop every movement in this direction. It is now confidently predicted that no more armies of alleged industrials will reach here. The workingmen and railroad men are particularly emphatic on that point.

MEETING AT COURT HOUSE To Be Held For the Purpose of Raising

There will be a meeting at the court house tonight to consider the problem of the unemployed. This was agreed on at a meeting at the state house this morning. The Coxeyites have been given permission by the governor to camp on the state house grounds. Mrs. Anna L. Diggs was to have addressed a meeting this morning on the "Coxey Movement," but before she began a telegram was received by Governor Lewelling from Bailey Waggener, counsel for the Missouri Pacific road, saying that he was en route on a train containing 412 industrials from Colorado, who would reach Topoka about 1:30, and asking permission to camp on the state ouse grounds.

Mrs. Diggs and others, including the governor, Secretary Osborn and Supt. Gaines, assembled in the governor's office in conference. Mrs. Diggs was chosen chairman and Mrs. Grace C. Potts secretary. Among others who were present were Mrs. Dr. McLallin, wife of the editor of the Advocate, and Mrs. Otis, wife of the ex-congressman.

It was suggested that the governor re-ply to the dispatch and say that the Coxeyites were welcome to Topeka, but must keep off the grass. This was said in fun, but it was feared that the dispatch would be misunderstood; so the governor simply replied by saying that they could camp on the grounds. The following call for a meeting was

"A meeting of citizens of Topeka, regardless of politics, will be held tonight at the court house to consider of the unemployed who are on their way to the national capital."

Ten of these calls were then quickly circulated over the city and promptly received many signatures of men of all

WHAT THE HOME GUARD WILL DO. Will Join the Police in Suppressing Any Lawlessness.

Elmer S. Hunter, the captain of the "Home Guard" of sympathizers with the commonweal movement, was seen this morning on the roof of Jasper Earnest's house on Quincy street, where the young militiaman was engaged in his occupation of a tinner. Hunter said: "I will quit work at noon and muster as many of the members of the home guard as can get together, and meet the prisoners at the depot. I can soon size them up by the looks of the gang whether they are honest men or not. If they appear to be such, we will see that the men do not suffer for anything to eat"

"But supposing," said the reporter, "that the prisoners should not be as nice as you expect, and should try to plunder the town. What would the home guard do then?"

"We would do what the name implies. We will protect the homes and join the police and the sheriff in suppressing any lawlessness or disorder.

"It seems to me these men are not all miners as the dispatches would Indi-There must be a large number of experienced railroad men with them. A miner couldn't run an engine and not blow it up, and nobody but men ex-perienced in such matters could build around the wrecks and take engines out of the ditches."

Going East in Squads. PORTLAND, Ore., May 11.-Portland's Coxey army which a week ago contained 600 men, has dwindled away and today it numbers less than forty. They are scattered along the Union Pacific small squads between this city and Utah riding on freight trains whenever the opportunity is afforded.

Typhoid Fever Breaks Out. Washington, May 11.-Typhoid has developed among Coxey's men and the entire camp is in a state of alarm and of great agitation. The army is dwind-ling, owing to desertions, and discontent is increasing.

The Fifth Ward Central Committee Makes a Statement.

The bloody Fifth ward will have a free for all at the primary tomorrow. It seems that some of the men in the ward were over anxious to go to the convention, and without even suggesting to the central committee that they desired a caucus, started out to get a packed caucus, when the people who wanted to see fair play turned out and snowed them under; being indifferent who went to the county convention, provided that they were instructed for governor. The central committee published a call and the following names were presented for delegates and alternates and are entitled to equal consideration and will be voted for tomorrow:

LOOKED LIKE GOLD.

But it Was Only a Lot of Campaign Badges.

NEW YORK, May 11 .- Workmen tearing down a rear two story building near the northwest corner of 23rd and Fourth avenue, were greatly excited when a shower of what looked like gold eagles fell upon them from among the timbers, work was suspended and there was a general scramble for the treasure.

It was soon found, however, that the shining discs were not coins. They were campaign badges of a generation ago. They were tokens worn by Lincoln men and McClellan men in 1864 and emblems of the Grant and the Seymour followers in 1868.

Altogether, there were about 50,000 of Some of them had tiny likenesses of the nominees in whose honor they were worn and others had devices which would stir the blood of old time politicians who had long ago forgotten them.

NEWS OF KANSAS.

Sensational Tar and Feathering at Brookville,

On Account of an Unwholesome Scandal There.

OTHER STATE NEWS.

Clever Pension Fraud Discovered at Leavenworth.

SALINA, May 11 .- The Republican gives an account of a sensational tar and feathering that occurred at the little town of Brookville in this county, and has just come to light. It says:

For some time a scandal has been connecting the name of Harry King and a Mrs. Hall of Brookville. The scandal grew so open that it caused a separation etween the woman and her husband. King and the woman became very unpopular and the community became greatly stirred up. The woman became frightened and fled, but King tarried.

Wednesday morning at about 7 o'clock a jury of twelve men visited Mr. king. They brought along a bucket of tar and a pillow full of feathers. King's clothes were taken off by the jury and a coat of tar and feathers applied to his legs. Then the jury spread on a heavy fleece of feathers, and led him down the street and out to the suburbs of the village.

One of the jury gave King his trousers while another gave him free advice about his longevity, in that community. The jury then left the young man alone with his fine feathers. The matter has created a decided breeze in the village and it is expected that King will cause some trouble. He is of a pugnacious disposi-tion, and, it is believed, will resent the liberties taken with him.

Marion County Espublicans Enthulastic-ally Endorse Hoch for Governor.

MARION, May 11 .- At the Republican county convention held in this county the following delegates were elected to the state Republican convention: J. W. Moore, W. T. Heblitzell, J. S. Dean, R. T. Beatty, S. F. Sackett, Brown Corby, O. Jolliff, George S. Hague, Frank Day, John Downs, H. M. Thorpe, S. L. Billing.

The convention adopted the subjoined resolution endorsing Hoch for governor and expressing its views on national is-

Resolved, That we most earnestly endorse the candidacy of our fellow citizen, Hop. E. W. Hoch, for governor of the state of Kansas and we, his neighbors and frigads who have known him longest and best, gladly embrace this opportunity to reccommend him the Republicans of the state at worthy, large as a worthy, consist-ent, clean, enthusiastic and able representative of our party. We believe that with him as the standard bearer in the coming campaign, the Republican party would achieve a signal and decisive victory. We therefore direct the delegation elected today to attend the state Republican convention to support his candidacy in every honorable way.

Resolved. That we pledge anew our devotion to National Republican principles as enunciated in the Minneapolis platform, and as exemplified by the fealty of action as well as profession, led by its exponents-our last and our next president—Benjamin Harrison and William McKinley.

Resolved, That great as are these national issues, we declare, however, that in this state, this year, the paramount issue is the redemption of Kansas from the domination of the socialists in theory and anarchists in practice, who, having first delude an honest following, have trampled upon law, outraged majorities, defied the courts; filled the offices with incompetent and bad men, mismanaged the state institutions, paralyzed business, and damaged the reputation of Kansas morally and materially at home and abroad. To wrest our beloved state from the clutches of a party bad alike in theory and practice, we believe to be the supreme issue. And to this patriotic work we invite the co-operation of every honest man, regardless of past political affiliations.

He has preceded the army to Westville, and also attempted to make a speech there, while the men were in camp, but they refused to listen to him. In a letter to Mayor Scott, of La Porte, where Randall was arrested, he has divided Randall's army into three classes, dangerous anarchists, socialists, and lazy, shiftless, go easy fellows, who care for nobody but self. says the movement will reach its climax in some small, defenseless village, and will breed discontent, disease and blood-The members of the band he scribes as wild visionary Prendergasts. ONE MAN DREW TWO PENSIONS. How An Old Colored Man at Leavenworth Defrauded the Government. LEAVENWORTH, May 11.—The postal authorities in this city uncovered a smooth pension fraud. A middle-aged colored man was receiving a pension of $24 a month under the name of Peter Gillespie, and another pension of $12 a month under the alias of John II. Brown. This he has been doing for the last three years, without attracting suspicion. Yesterday a letter containing a pension check to Gillespie was delivered to him by a mail carrier at his home. This morning he called at the post office general delivery for a pension letter for J. H. Brown, when a new clerk, who was at the window, would not give it to him without identification. While talking about identification the mail carrier ap-peared and told of giving him the Gillespie pension letter. On being questioned by Postmaster Ritchey he acknowledged getting the two pensions, and said he was in the war twice, once under his old master's name and once under his father's name. He claimed that he was entitled to two pensions. Two special pension examiners, stationed here, were notified.
